

AGED PIONEER DROPS
DEAD ON THE STREET

George Whipple Taylor, who has been the station agent for the past ten years for the Southern Pacific Company at Ocean View, passed away suddenly last Friday at 12:30.

Mr. Taylor was stricken with a heart attack while walking along Mission street at Hillcrest Drive, and passed away before he could receive medical attention. When Mr. Taylor fell, he was quickly picked up by sympathetic spectators, but he was beyond human aid.

Before being stationed at Ocean View, Mr. Taylor was the agent for the Southern Pacific at Colma for many years, where he was widely known and leaves a large circle of friends to mourn his passing.

His length of service with the company had long since entitled him to retirement on pension, but he preferred to remain in active service, and had been at the Ocean View station ever since his transfer from Colma.

George Whipple Taylor was the beloved husband of Henrietta R. Taylor. He was a native of Ohio, and had long been a member of Division No. 53, Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

The funeral was held from San Francisco last Monday morning, and interment was at Woodlawn cemetery.

FATALLY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

A very unfortunate automobile accident occurred in San Bruno on Friday evening of last week, when the Riofrio family, of Brunswick street, were all painfully injured. Mrs. Rosa Dheming Riofrio, wife of Louis Riofrio, was so severely injured that she passed away the next morning at the South San Francisco hospital, where she was taken after the accident.

From all reports, Mr. Riofrio, who was driving, tried to pass a bus, and in so doing hit a laundry truck coming in the opposite direction. In the excitement, Mrs. Riofrio jumped from the machine and was struck by the laundry truck. All the other occupants of the Riofrio car were badly cut and bruised.

Mrs. Riofrio was the beloved wife of Louis Riofrio, and the mother of Ralph, Bertha and Louise Gonzales, daughter of Mrs. Romona Dheming, of Bellevue avenue, and sister of Mrs. Virginia Guerrero. She was a native of San Salvador, Central America.

The funeral was held on last Wednesday morning from the mortuary chapel of W. C. Lasswell & Co., thence to St. Maximus church, where mass was celebrated for the repose of her soul. Interment was at Holy Cross cemetery.

CHILDREN ENJOY
EASTER EGG HUNT

Mrs. C. Goodwin, Mrs. G. Thyeson and Mrs. F. W. Larkin, all of Niantic avenue, sponsored an Easter egg hunt on last Sunday afternoon. The ladies colored nine dozen eggs, which were hidden, along with many dozen candy eggs, in the neighboring lots. The children were then invited to come and hunt for the eggs. Awards were offered for the child who found the most eggs, and Charles Goodwin was the lucky one, finding eighteen eggs. The hunt lasted several hours. The children are in hopes that this will be made an annual affair.

CALVARY MISSION TO ATTEND
WEST BAY BAPTIST RALLY

April 12 is the date set for the largest rally ever held by the West Bay Baptist churches. Every church is determined to win the banner, and Calvary Mission is no exception. Every member and friend of Calvary Mission is called upon to set this date aside and be present at the First Baptist church at 7:30 o'clock. Remember, visitors count in this contest. We must have 200 representatives in order to insure the banner for Calvary.

Easter services were attended by the largest number in the history of the Mission. Evening services held at the First church were well attended and eight candidates from Calvary were baptised. Mr. W. A. Green, of Daly City, together with his wife and daughter Marie, were received by letter from their church in Oklahoma. We are glad to note that this family was first brought in contact with the Mission through the aid of the announcements in the Daly City Record.

ARTHUR C. MINTZ, Pastor.

SUBMIT PLANS FOR THE JEFFERSON SHOP

On last Tuesday evening the high school Board of Education met in special session to pass upon the details of the shop plans submitted by the architect, W. H. Weeks. Mr. P. L. Dragon represented the architect's office. Mr. Truman Bentley presided. Trustees Brown, Gehringer, Jensen and Twisten were present, also Principal James Ferguson and Mr. C. Hackley, instructor in auto mechanics.

A few minor changes were made in the placing of lights and electric outlets, after which the plans were finally adopted.

A motion by Trustee Jensen that bids for the new building be advertised for in the Daly City Record was adopted unanimously.

The shop building is to be constructed of concrete, and will cover an area of approximately 104 by 50 feet. This will give ample space for a most commodious auto mechanics department. The lighting will be adequate to meet the most exacting demands. Windows of the modern factory type occupy the entire east and west sides. In addition, three large sky-lights are provided to admit light overhead.

At one end the building will be two stories high to provide classroom space for the auto classes in drawing and other supplementary subjects.

The new building will be placed on the grounds facing San Diego avenue, in accordance with plans submitted by the Division of Schoolhouse Planning of the State Department of Education at Sacramento, and will fit into the general plan suggested by the state office for further extensions in building as future demands require.

It was the unanimous opinion of the board of education that the new addition will not only add to the efficiency of the school, but will also be an exceedingly artistic addition to the high school group of buildings.

DALY CITY COUNCIL
ENJOYS BANQUET

Daly City Council No. 2712, Knights of Columbus, held its regular meeting last Tuesday evening at Eagles Hall. A large group of members and visiting members attended.

Delegates were elected to attend the state convention to be held in Yosemite valley, May 12 to 16. The Rev. Father James Donohoe and Grand Knight Richard Ennis were elected. Their alternates are Hugh H. Smith and Stephen N. Pfeifer.

Preliminary arrangements are being made for the annual inter-Council picnic of San Mateo county Councils. Daly City Council, "Baby Council of California," will join with San Mateo and Palo Alto Councils in arranging this outing.

Following the meeting, Thomas Callan and a group of workers served a sumptuous banquet to a gathering of some seventy or eighty Knights. Among the visiting brothers were M. D. Ashe, financial secretary of Mission Council; Miles A. Sharkey, Grand Knight of San Mateo Council; William Hogan, Warden of San Mateo Council; Jerome M. Lalor, District Deputy of San Mateo County Councils, and a number of others, who extended their best wishes and hopes for the certain success of Daly City Council. The banquet was most enjoyable, with interesting stories and talks by visiting and Daly City members, supplemented with songs and musical numbers by some of the younger Daly City Council members.

The next regular meeting will be on Tuesday evening, April 16. A vaudeville show will follow the meeting.

WALTER T. MURPHY.

GENERAL PERSHING SCHOOL
PARENT-TEACHERS' MEETING

The General Pershing school P. T. A. held a very interesting meeting at the school house on Tuesday. Mrs. Clifton was the new secretary installed by Past President Lillian Landini, after the former secretary, Mrs. Katch, had resigned on account of illness. Mrs. Fletcher, the president, reported having made 368 calls on mothers and guardians of the children of the school, and said she was very much encouraged at the response of mothers, who in every way had been more than generous in taking tickets, giving donations and cakes, and offering their help in every way to make the children of the district a bit happier.

A musical program was presented by Ruby Sebring, who rendered two vocal solos, and one of her pupils, Marjory Godly, who rendered a beautiful and difficult piano solo which was enjoyed by about sixty mothers and friends. Home made cake and coffee were served. Mrs. O'Neil, with Mrs. Hassett, were co-hostesses of the day.

ADOLPH GEHRINGER
RE-ELECTED TRUSTEE

Adolph Gehringer, trustee of the Jefferson Union high school district, was elected to succeed himself at the school election held on last Friday throughout the school district. No other candidate was announced, so Mr. Gehringer's name was the only one on the ballot.

Mr. Gehringer's candidacy met with widespread approval throughout the entire district both among patrons of the school and citizens and taxpayers in general. He had served on the high school board continuously since the establishment of the school, and had given unselfish and highly efficient service to the district both in business matters in general and in his own special line as a builder.

He has always shown a deep interest in the internal affairs of the school. His son is a graduate of Jefferson, and his daughter is a member of the present senior class. As a consequence Mr. Gehringer keeps in close sympathetic touch with every detail of the administration of the school. At the social functions he and Mrs. Gehringer are frequent patrons.

As a further testimonial to the success of Mr. Gehringer as a high school trustee, his candidacy was endorsed unanimously by the other members of the high school board of education.

ENTERTAIN FRIENDS
AT EASTER PARTY

Woodrow Olson and Jack Morgan entertained several of their friends at an Easter party on last Saturday evening at the Morgan home on Niantic avenue.

The guests were delightfully entertained by Miss Cynthia Morgan, who led them in games, after which dainty refreshments were served.

The guests were Claire Thomy, Arthur Thomy, Catherine Doherty, Myrtle Doherty, Fred Shaunesy, John Doherty, Virginia Larkin, Jack Morgan, Jack Morgan, Jr., Woodrow Olson, Miss Cynthia Morgan, Mrs. F. W. Larkin and Mr. Peter Morgan.

CALVARY BAPTIST MISSION
YOUNG PEOPLE'S MEETING

"Using the Bible as a Daily Guide" is the topic to be discussed by the Calvary Baptist Mission Young People next Sunday at 7 p. m. All young people are invited to come and visit. We are always glad to have you join our union of the Baptist Young People of America. There are no dues or fees; you give as you feel like giving.

Each meeting is planned and put over by a young person. A lively song service starts it off, followed by some special numbers of some sort. Then follows the talks and discussions of the meeting. They are exceedingly interesting after this period, and any one can say what they like about the topic.

Last Sunday the Union went to the First Baptist church of San Francisco to attend special Easter services. The meeting was very inspirational and was enjoyed by all that attended.

CROCKER P. T. A. PLANS
WHIST AND BUNDLE WEEK

The Crocker Parent-Teachers' Association will hold its first regular social whist next Wednesday afternoon at the school. Refreshments will be served.

Next week is to be devoted to bundle week, so all those who have any clothes they don't need any more, kindly bring them to the school next Wednesday and the committee will take charge of them. Let us have a good showing and a good time at our whist game on April 10.

AUGUSTIEN IS AGAIN
CHOSEN AS TRUSTEE

George R. Augustien, who has served Jefferson school district faithfully for the past two full terms, six years, was re-elected last Friday for another term of three years.

He has acted as chairman of the board of trustees during the whole time of his service, and he does this with uniform courtesy to all who appear before him. The regular monthly meeting takes place at the Vista Grande school on the last Wednesday evening of each month. Trustee Augustien's earnestness, as an official, is shown by the regularity of his attendance at the meetings. He is always the first to put in an appearance and he is seldom absent.

It is his ambition to endeavor to keep all things going harmoniously toward providing the best possible education for every child of the entire district and generous consideration for all the teachers. In this he is ably upheld by his two colleagues, W. J. Sweeney and Louis Nava. There is never any clashing at the meetings, as the business is conducted promptly and in a friendly manner.

There is no compensation for a school trustee, except the personal satisfaction of doing something for the benefit of others and the appreciation of those whom he serves.

His willingness to serve another term is evidence that he enjoys the work, and the large vote he received proves that the people think he is the right man in the right place.

All the teachers are enthused over his re-election, for it emphasizes that their teaching is satisfactory to nearly all. They are paid salaries for their efforts, but they love the appreciation of the public, too. In fact, without it, they could do very little.

In the election, Trustee Augustien had opposition this year. William J. Lantheaume was the contestant, and the following was the result:

George R. Augustien—Colma, 46; Vista Grande, 107; Crocker, 115.

William J. Lantheaume—Colma, 7; Vista Grande, 55; Crocker, 18.

Not much campaigning was done by either candidate, so it may be set down as an election that made no excitement and caused no hard feeling. William J. Lantheaume is a most worthy young man and deserves success, as one of our established dentists.

THE ART AND NEEDLE CLUB
ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON

Mrs. Nan Hilton, of Crocker avenue, entertained the members of the Art and Needle Club and several of her friends at a delightful luncheon at her home last Wednesday. The luncheon table was exceptionally beautiful with its Easter decorations, winning the admiration of all the guests. In the center of the table was a huge green basket filled with daffodils and maidenhair ferns, with a fluffy yellow chick perched on its handle. Surrounding the basket was a pretty green nest, and tucked in the nest were little yellow feathered chickens and Easter eggs colored in pastel shades. A brightly colored rooster and hen kept watch beside the nest. To carry out the color scheme each guest found at her plate either a white or yellow paper hat and a little chicken standing guard over a yellow basket filled with candy eggs.

After the luncheon a musical program was enjoyed. Mrs. J. Coleman favored the guests with several solos, and Mrs. B. Klassen presented fancy dances. Those present included Mesdames J. Suttman, F. Dunn, E. Elwell, B. Klassen, A. Siebecker, E. Templin, P. Peterson, G. Augustien, V. Fenstermacher, A. Boni, J. Viotti, A. Chesney, S. Crawford, J. Coleman, and A. Hilton.

JEFFERSON UNION
HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

By the Class in Journalism

A "Jefferson Spirit" dance will be held tonight in the Jefferson high auditorium, to raise money for the 1929 year book, so that no debt will be carried over to the next semester. Whists were originally planned for this purpose, but it has been decided that dances are more popular. All the students are urged to come, and extend a cordial invitation to their parents and friends. Outsiders must have bids, which they may obtain from students, and will be charged 50 cents, but parents are admitted free.

A number of Jefferson Union high school students are planning to attend the Job's Daughters' dance to be given in the American Hall at Twentieth and Capp streets tomorrow night. Some of the students who intend to go are: Frances Clark, Lillian Dunbar, Mildred Franklin, Evelyn Hansen, Florence Kennedy, Ruth Moran, Florence Rancatore, Rosemary Reed, Irene Smith, and Eleitta Williams; William Brush, Jack Gibbons, Edgar Hooton, Lawrence Kennedy, John Muller, Bill Pilgrim, Roger Putney, and Hugh Smith.

Louise Neubarth, a former Jefferson student, visited school last Monday. She is now living in Stockton, but she stayed in San Francisco with her cousin during the Easter vacation.

A group of alumni students plan to hike to Big Lagoon Sunday, April 14.

The auto mechanics department is delighted over the adoption of plans for the new shop building by the Board of Education on last Tuesday evening. Bids will be advertised for immediately and will be opened for consideration on Tuesday evening, April 23. It is expected that construction will begin before the close of the present school year. Classes will undoubtedly occupy the new building at the opening of the fall semester.

JURIES CHOSEN TO SELECT WINNERS OF FLAG CONTEST

Juries of award have been selected for Jefferson's unit in the Flag contest, according to Mr. Van Houte, in charge of the unit. Two separate juries, one for the girls, and one for the boys, have been chosen as follows:

For the boys: Mr. Truman Bentley, president of the Board of Trustees; Mr. H. H. Smith, mayor of Daly City; Mr. W. J. Savage, superintendent of grammar school district.

For the girls: Mrs. Stella Jensen, secretary of the Board of Trustees; Mrs. A. Stockton, housewife, Daly City; Mrs. S. Landini, housewife, Daly City.

Wednesday, May 8, is the date set for the reading of the six essays. This part of the contest will take place in the school auditorium.

PRINCIPAL DESCRIBES TRIP
TAKEN IN AN AIRPLANE

A flight over the bay region in a tri-motor Ford plane operated by the Standard Oil company was a feature of the Principals' convention during the Easter vacation that Mr. Ferguson particularly enjoyed. He was in the air about thirty minutes.

During the summer of 1905, while attending an educational conference in Europe, Mr. Ferguson flew from London to Paris, a trip requiring three hours. In making a comparison between the two flights, he said that the advance which has been made in airplanes, and the skill with which they are handled, is remarkable.

In reply to the question, "What is your feeling when the plane is leaving the ground?" Mr. Ferguson answered that there was no sensation at all. He explained that he could not tell when the plane left the ground, except by watching the wheels of the plane as it ran down the runway to get up speed to rise in the air. It seemed, he said, as if the ground below were dropping away, rather than the plane rising.

In conclusion, Mr. Ferguson declared that one could have no conception of the marvelous beauty of San Francisco bay and the surrounding cities until he viewed the country from an airplane.

HONOR J WILL HAVE MEMBERS
AT CONVENTION ON APRIL 13

An invitation to the Scholarship federation convention at San Mateo Union high school April 13 was extended to the members of the Honor J society at their meeting March 19. Several students are planning to go to the convention, as this term the organization is considering joining the federation, so the society has an excellent opportunity to become well acquainted with its work.

It was also decided that the Honor

COUNTIES AND STATE TO EXTEND HIGHWAY

A resolution was filed with the San Mateo county board of supervisors last Monday, whereby Joint Highway District No. 10 will not create a highway assessment district for the continuation of Junipero Serra boulevard into this county, but allow San Mateo and San Francisco counties and the state to bear the cost.

San Mateo county's share will be $15,937, San Francisco's, $90,312, and the state's $83,750. The entire cost of the project will be $190,000. The resolution was signed by Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey, president of the district, and Supervisors Andrew J. Gallagher and Alfred Roncovieri of San Francisco, directors. A second resolution requests the transfer of rights of way and easements in this county to San Francisco.

Half of the $1,200 per year license fee paid in advance to San Mateo county by the San Francisco Bay Toll Bridge Company for the operation of its span has been demanded by Alameda county, the board of supervisors was told by County Treasurer Grace Cooper. That the eastbay county considers itself entitled to $600 of the fee is contained in a resolution from Treasurer F. W. Foss, and signed by William J. Hamilton, chairman of the Alameda board of supervisors. By vote, the demand was referred to District Attorney Franklin Swart for his legal opinion.

FIREMEN'S ANNUAL SHOW ON APRIL 17

Extensive preparations have been made by the committee in charge of the annual picture and vaudeville show to be given by the members of the Daly City Volunteer Fire Department on Wednesday evening, April 17, at the Daly City Theatre. Two shows are to be given, at 7 and 9 p. m., and it is promised that one of the best programs of the year will be presented.

Those who have attended the shows given by the firemen in the past will not need to be told that the evening's entertainment will be worth while, as former shows have been most satisfactory. It is announced that the committee is out this year to eclipse all previous records. Hence you will be wise to reserve the date of Wednesday evening, April 17, and be at the Daly City Theatre.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR PROSPECTIVE BRIDE

Recently Miss Cora Gaspidone was given a surprise miscellaneous shower at her home on Greenwich street, San Francisco, by a number of her friends. Miss Gaspidone will become the bride of Mr. Louis Veresio some time during the month of May.

Among the guests were the following from Colma and Daly City: Mr. and Mrs. Steve Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Al Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wall, Misses Marge O'Connor, Audrey Diamond, Roberta Heagney, Edna Boyle, Tess O'Connor, Messrs. Louis Ehling, Wallace Allen, Ed O'Connor, Harold Sargent, and Bill Moran.

Miss Gaspidone was the recipient of many lovely gifts. Recently Miss Gaspidone returned from a six months tour of Europe with her parents.

JEFFERSON HIGH P. T. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Jefferson Union high school P. T. A. was held on Thursday, March 28, at the high school. Owing to the Easter vacation a number were absent, but a very interesting meeting was held, with President Mrs. Putney presiding. It was decided to hold a whist party to raise money to purchase blankets for the football team ready for the opening of the football season. These blankets are very necessary to the boys, as they protect them from the danger of taking cold when brought out of the game for a rest, as of course they are very warm at that time and are likely to take cold if not properly protected. The time and place of this whist will be announced in this paper in the near future.

J would hold some food sales, since the juniors abandoned this project.

CONCERT WHISTLER PRESENTS
PROGRAM FOR STUDENT BODY

Ernest Nichols, American concert whistler, gave an entertainment first period Tuesday, for which the students paid ten cents each. The numbers he presented were part of a program he gave in Cuba and Berlin. The first number was Drdl's "Souvenir." His second selection was taken from a part of "The Glow-worm." "Just A-Wearyin' for You," "Pizzicati," and "Kamenoi-Ostrow" were also presented.

After these numbers, Mr. Nichols gave instructions on how to whistle.

TELEPHOTOGRAPHS SPEED
STORE'S FASHION NOTES

While the football game between the Army and Harvard was taking place last fall at Cambridge, the stylist of a New York department store made sketches and notes of the sports costumes worn by the spectators. These sketches were then sent to the New York store by telephotography and were reproduced in an interesting advertisement of the store which appeared in the next morning's newspapers. Six sketches and a short description of each were sent.

YOUR BANK AND HOW TO USE IT

THE COLLECTION DEPARTMENT

Any depositor interested in taking his bank apart to see how it ticks, would be very quick to realize just how much the collection department means to him, particularly if he is a merchant or shipper. Primarily this department is operated by the mechanism of the commercial department, where commercial or checking deposits are made, but it also has many functions that are not particularly related to this parent control.

For instance, if a depositor wants to transfer either a commercial or a savings account from a bank in Chicago to a bank of his choice in Santa Rosa, Visalia, or elsewhere, the collection department takes care of such transfer. It will not only attend to collections for shipments of goods but in some instances will actually ship one or more articles for a customer from point to point, if such service is required.

Briefly, the collection department takes care of all paper that is not cleared, such as insurance drafts with no bank specified on the face thereof, pay checks issued on the paying form and not on a bank, and the "cash item" obligations of other banks that have no clearing facilities.

Perhaps the most important function of the collection department is the making of collections at distant points for commercial customers of the bank. For example, a merchant in Stockton may make a shipment of goods to a customer in Ogden. The merchant or shipper submits to his bank the bill of lading itemizing the shipment and the amount due, and asks the bank to collect. The bill of lading is thereupon sent by the collection department to a correspondent bank in Ogden and this correspondent collects payment for the shipment upon presentation of such bill. The consignee can obtain neither the goods nor the bill without making the payment that the bill calls for. When the goods are shipped without a bill of lading, the shipper merely asks his bank to attend to the collection and the bank passes this order on to the correspondent bank at the shipping destination. Such correspondent then obtains payment from the consignee upon presentation of the order.

The collection department is in no sense a collection agency or bureau. It has no way of enforcing payments. If payments are refused, the creditor is duly notified and he may then appeal to the law or obtain other relief.

The department also takes care of the mechanics of all credit transactions relating to collections after such transactions have been passed on by the proper loaning officer. For example, if a shipper wishes to obtain a loan on a bill of lading, he may get this accommodation from his bank through its collection department.

with the proviso that he shall repay the loan as soon as the bill of lading has been honored by the consignee. If a merchant or shipper offers a trade acceptance, which is a promise of the consignee to pay by a certain date for a bill of goods delivered, the bank will cash such trade acceptance and then attend to the collection on the date specified.

Another important function of this department is installment collections on second mortgages and other paper. To explain, a man may sell a house on which he is paying first mortgage installments to a bank or finance company. The buyer may also desire to take advantage of installment arrangements through the drawing up of a second mortgage. If he desires, the seller, or other beneficiary of such second mortgage may arrange through his bank for the collection of the installments from the buyer. Along the same line, the collection department collects insurance installments or premiums. The Bank of Italy handles all of this work for one big insurance company in California.

The collection department is a tremendously important service for the commercial customers of the bank, and they make extensive use of it. If it were not for this service, many big firms would have to maintain collection facilities at all shipping destinations and a more or less elaborate set-up at home to handle such facilities. The little merchant would find his shipping range greatly restricted because of the cost of maintaining a collection service.

Through the collection department the bank obtains new correspondents and deposits, and the extension of its commercial business through service rendered. It is axiomatic that the bank with the best collection department will obtain the most business. That is the reason why such departments are maintained at a high degree of efficiency.

The relations of collection departments are of a reciprocal nature. The Bank of Italy maintains a good sized force to attend to collections requested by other banks and interests. Other such departments are at the service of the Bank of Italy and its customers everywhere. Every branch of the Bank of Italy enjoys the facilities of the collection department. The collection department of the modern bank is equipped to handle collections in any part of the world.

FACTS ABOUT THE TELEPHONE

There are more than 68,000,000 miles of telephone wire in the United States.

There are about 700,000 men and women who own Bell system telephone securities.

The first telephone exchange in the state of California was opened at San Francisco on February 17, 1878.

During 1928 the average time required to make a long distance telephone connection in the United States was 2.4 minutes, as compared with 13.6 minutes in 1920.

MOVING THE SIDE OF A GRANITE MOUNTAIN

Moving the side of a granite mountain in the upper stretches of the Mokelumne river is on the program of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company engineers, as one of the steps in the construction of the Salt Springs dam, the basic unit of the company's $25,000,000 Mokelumne river hydroelectric development. Crews are now busy day and night drilling the necessary holes for firing a "shot" of approximately 35 tons of dynamite, which will blast away a section of cliff about 1,000 feet long, 120 feet high and 45 feet thick. By the force of the explosion this whole granite mass will be "kicked out" from the mountain for a distance of at least 25 feet. The "shot" will loosen up about 150,000 cubic yards of rock to be used in building the dam.

The Salt Springs structure, situated 50 miles east of Jackson, will be the greatest rock-filled dam in the world, containing approximately 3,000,000 cubic yards of granite, the cubic content of Cheops, Egypt's largest pyramid. It will be 382 feet high, 1,300 feet long at the crest, and 960 feet through at the base.

Although completion of the project has been set for the middle of 1931, the dam already has taken definite form. A concrete cut-off wall, 250 feet long, 15 feet wide and 6 feet thick has been built into bedrock at the base of the structure, 40 feet below the river bed, to prevent seepage. This cut-off wall will be continued up each end of the dam, tying it into the granite cliffs on both the Calaveras and Amador sides of the canyon.

The upstream surface of the dam will have a water tight facing of concrete, graduating in thickness from three feet at the bottom to a foot and a half at the crest, and based on a layer of derrick placed granite 15 feet thick. The structure will form a reservoir six miles long and with a capacity of 130,000 acre feet.

Sharing in the development of 33,500 horsepower of electricity at this plant will be water carried through a two and a half mile tunnel and 4,500 feet of pipeline from a new reservoir on Bear river, north of the Mokelumne. Water entering the power house from the reservoir back of the Salt Springs dam will drop about 300 feet, while the water from the Bear river reservoir will drop from the mountain top through steel pipe approximately 2,000 feet.

From this generating unit the water will flow through 20 miles of concrete canal to Tiger Creek; there it will again be dropped down 1,200 feet into a power house with a capacity of 80,000 horsepower. Then through another 22 miles of canal to augment the output of the Electra plant, 11 miles east of Jackson, after which it will return to the regular course of the Mokelumne.

DALY CITY THEATRE
SCORES AGAIN WITH ANOTHER BIG WEEK

The Daly City Theatre will present another week of big smashing feature attractions, starting the week off tonight with Warner Baxter, Buster Collier and Patsy Ruth Miller in "Tragedy of Youth," a vivid drama of flappers and Sheiks. On the stage Dumbell and his merry gang will be seen, together with the snappy vaudeville numbers.

For Saturday the Daly City has a galaxy of attractions, starting off the day with two big feature attractions of exceptional merit. Tom Tyler and his pals will be seen in a rip roaring western story called "The Cherokee Kid," while J. Farrell McDonald, Polly Moran and Louise Dresser will appear in that comedy special, "Bringing up Father," with Jiggs, Maggie and Dinty Moore dealing out the big laughs. Every lady patron attending the night performance will be presented with a piece of silverware free, of the famous Peerless Lorain Silver. At the matinee there will be two big serial specials, with the closing episode of "The Vanishing West," and the opening episode of "The Fatal Warning," a mystery thriller with Ralph Graves and Helen Costello in the leading roles.

Sunday at the Daly City Theatre means fun and thrills. George X. "Snooky" White and his company of musical comedy favorites will dispense the fun, while Blanche Machaffey and Earl Metcalf will deal the thrills in "The Air Mail Pilot," a thrilling story of genuine love and dangerous flying stunts. The usual short features will be on the same bill.

For Monday, Buddy Rogers, screen-dom's most popular star, will be the lead in "Red Lips," a cocktail of delight, with all the fire and passion of restless youth, especially pleasing to the taste. On the same bill will be shown the championship wrestling match between Lewis and Sonnenberg. And then there's Lupino Lane in "Pirates Beware," a sensational comedy special.

Tuesday will bring Silver Nite to the Daly City Theatre, when every lady attending the performance will be given a piece of the famous Peerless silver of the Lorain pattern. On the screen Anita Stewart, Creighton Hale and Betty Blythe will appear in "Sisters of Eve," a tremendous story of the women of today, full of tense dramatic action and thrills. Other attractions will include an educational comedy, "Call Your Shots," a special "The Tom Masters," and the News reel and a Novelty.

Wednesday night is bargain night at the Daly City Theatre, when two big features will be offered, with Milton Sills and Thelma Todd appearing in "The Crash," a powerful and dramatic railroad story, presenting the most thrilling head-on train wreck ever screened. Buzz Barton, the wizard boy of the screen, will be featured in the second feature attraction, called "The Boy Rider," an exceptional Western story, packed to the brim with novelty, suspense and speed. On the same bill Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy will appear in their funniest comedy special, called "He-bus Cor-pus."

Richard Barthelmess will be the attraction for Thursday, when he will appear in "Out of the Ruins," a gigantic special from the First National studios, with Marion Nixon in the main supporting role. Pillow night is also a Thursday offering at the Daly City Theatre.

ALUMNAE PLANS REUNION

Completing her term as president of the Girls' High Alumnae Association of San Francisco, Mrs. Walter H. Robinson plans a reunion for all members of the alumnae and graduates who are not members. A reception will be held at the Western Women's Club on Saturday, April 13, from 3 to 5 p. m. It is hoped that all the graduates will attend, as various class reunions will be held at this time. There will also be a short talk by Mrs. Vivian Ortiz, stylist, on "Modern Fashion Highlights," illustrated with living models.

Miss Frances Perkins has been appointed industrial commissioner of the state of New York by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received and opened by the Board of Trustees of the Jefferson Union High School District, Daly City, San Mateo County, State of California, in the present High School Building, at 8 o'clock P. M. on the 23rd day of April, 1929, for the erection and completion of a Shop Building on the present High School grounds at Daly City, San Mateo County, State of California, all in accordance with plans and specifications made by W. H. Weeks, Architect.

Plans and specifications may be seen at the office of the Architect, W. H. Weeks, 111 Sutter Street, San Francisco, California, or at the office of the Clerk of the Board of Trustees of the Jefferson Union High School District, as a guarantee that the bidder will, within five (5) days after being informed of the acceptance of his bid, enter into a contract with the said Board in accordance with said bid, and that he will furnish the necessary surety bonds; said check to be forfeited to the said Board should the bidder fail to execute the contract and furnish the above mentioned bonds. Each bid must be delivered in a sealed envelope addressed to the Clerk of the Board of Trustees of the Jefferson Union High School District, and endorsed, "Proposal for Shop Building."

The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

SIGNED: STELLA L. JENSEN, Clerk.

Cloth for Africans
Lancashire fabric manufacturers are, many of them, devoting the greater part of their time to the production of cloths for natives in Africa and other countries overseas. One Bolton weaver, I am told, is visited personally by native chiefs from time to time, who bring over the latest color-stripe patterns from the native looms for the manufacturer to imitate. The small native loom produces a "join" in about every five inches of the fabric, and this the Lancashire weaver has to imitate artificially, or his stuff will not be acceptable!—Exchange.

Poppies Battle Symbol
Superstition looks upon poppies that bloom on battlefields as the blood of the slain soldiers. The Romans regarded the flower as the symbol of death and dedicated it to Somnus, god of sleep. A strange fact about the poppy is that when placed with other flowers it will either wilt or cause them to droop and die.

WHEN IT LOOKS DARK to any weak, nervous or ailing woman, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to her aid. Women in every walk of life today say Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a reliable medicine. It is made from roots and herbs, sold by druggists, in both fluid and tablet form.

Mrs. J. E. Day, 1114 Jessie St., San Francisco, Calif., said: "For a long time I suffered from woman's trouble. I was so nervous that I never got a good night's rest, had pains in my side and my back was lame and ached all the time. I got so miserable and weak that I could scarcely do anything. But, after taking a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I was in good physical condition, my nerves and pains disappeared, my nerves quieted, and I was feeling so well one would think I never had a sick day."

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Ontario must immediately improve approximately twenty miles of sidewalk at an estimated cost of $70,000, if it does not want to risk losing its free mail delivery service. This warning was issued to the city council by the superintendent of mails at the local post office. The streets also must be properly lighted, and houses must be so numbered that the numerals may be read easily from the street. The postal department regulations demand all these things, otherwise the delivery service will be discontinued.

The value of timber cut from the national forests of California district (California and southwestern Nevada) amounted to $1,037,638 in the calendar year 1928, according to T. D. Woodbury, assistant district forester in charge of the office of forest management in the United States Forest Service headquarters at San Francisco. This total is a 15 per cent increase over the 1927 receipts, and is the first time that the revenue from timber sales in the national forests of California has exceeded one million dollars. The total cut of national forest timber amounted to 333 million feet. Of the total receipts from timber sales approximately $130,000 was applied in the exchange of private lands within the national forests. Timber sold at cost of administration to farmers and settlers for use on their lands totaled $1,114.

NUCLEUS OF OLD CHAMPION TEAM

Evers, Gowdy and Maranville Return to Braves.

Back in 1914, the Boston Braves were in last place in July, 19 games behind the leaders and apparently going nowhere, as usual.

George Stallings invoked a "miracle," and the Braves won the National league pennant and later the world series with the Philadelphia Athletics in four straight games.

Just how much credit is due the "miracle" for that most amazing form reversal in the history of baseball and how much is due the players who made it possible cannot be told with any degree of certainty in this still unenlightened age.

But the keystone combination and the hard-hitting catcher who formed the nucleus of those amazing Braves of 15 seasons ago will be back with the club in 1929.

Evers, Maranville and Gowdy, names to compare with in 1914, have once more joined their old club. It may be that Judge Emil Fuchs believes he can build another winner upon the gray matter of the past.

The Boston Braves have never approached a performance equal to that of 15 seasons ago. They have never even won a pennant. They have gone steadily downhill, despite the efforts of many masters.

Last year, even with Rogers Hornsby and some promising pitching material, the Braves were the disappointment of their backers in the Hub.

This year, Judge Fuchs will take matters in his own hands, he says, and manage the club himself. His first move was to gather about him Johnny Evers, Hank Gowdy and Rabbit Maranville, heroes of that 1914 drive.

Johnny Evers will be Fuchs' assistant as manager of the club. Hank Gowdy will be a coach, a scout, a great help to young pitchers. Rabbit Maranville will play shortstop.

Paper That Won't Burn

A paper that does not burn has been discovered. The German inventor, Franz Franck, gave a demonstration recently. He took a sheet of ordinary newspaper, crumpled it into a ball, and wrapped this highly combustible object in a sheet of his fireproof paper. Thus protected, he held it for a few minutes in the flame of a laboratory blast lamp hot enough to melt a glass window-pane. Not only did the fireproof wrapping survive, but the ordinary paper inside was not even scorched.

NICE WORDS WON'T DYE a dress or coat...

Neither pretty pictures nor colorful adjectives will dye a dress or coat. It takes real dyes to do the work; dyes made from true anilines.

Next time you have dyeing to do, try Diamond Dyes. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree they are better dyes.

You get none of that re-dyed look from Diamond Dyes; no streaking or spotting. Just fresh, crisp, bright new color. And watch the way they keep their brilliance through wear and washing. They are better dyes because they contain plenty of real anilines—from three to five times more than other dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

HOOVER'S POLICIES

During his first few weeks in office President Hoover has taken several steps which begin to mark the outline of his national policies, at the same time indicating that he is to be an executive of prompt decision.

First, he announced that no more government oil lands will be leased during his administration, unless so directed by Congress. This is a practical conservation measure, as too much oil is being produced now, and the government may well set an example in curtailing the output.

Then he directed that all income tax refunds in excess of $20,000 shall be given publicity. This step may be expected to avert much criticism such as has been voiced in the past.

He is frankly supporting the constituted Mexican government in its efforts to put down the present revolution, by permitting arms and munitions to go to President Gil's forces, while denying them to the rebels. This is a distinct contrast to a former "watchful waiting" policy.

Appointments to the board to investigate criminal procedure and law enforcement are awaited with much interest, and it is said that President Hoover will be more deliberate in this matter, in the hope of selecting able and impartial men in whom the country has confidence.

So far it appears that the new administration is making a very favorable impression. The test of President Hoover's strength will come when he gets Congress on his hands.

A bit of wisdom by Amos Parrish, New York merchandising expert: We formerly treated children as though they were small adults; now we are beginning to realize that adults are only large children—or words to that effect.

Alabama prosperity note: "Three bandits obtained $25,000 in money and jewelry by holding up a crap game in Birmingham.

A new world language is called Ro. If all the words are of one syllable like that the headline writers will be strong for it.

RESTRICTED IMMIGRATION

"With labor-saving devices being rapidly installed in industry, thus displacing many workers annually, whose future and whose earning power must be safeguarded by the utilization of their skill and experience gained in their past years of useful service, the country has a sacred obligation to protect them against unemployment," declared the Commissioner of Immigration, Harry E. Hull. "One of the surest ways," he continued, "in which to throw such protection about them is by the strict compliance with the immigration law, with limitations and qualifications which must be met by all those who seek American shores and their attendant benefits.

"Indeed, our manufacturers and employers could be of the greatest assistance in the enforcement of the immigration laws if they would insist that no alien should find employment with them unless he had been lawfully admitted for permanent residence. This principle is of greatest importance locally, where the employment and service of local artisans should be given every preference to that which comes from outside sources. This would be a sure way of protecting each community, and, thus the whole State and Nation."

Commissioner Hull pointed out that even with the present restrictive laws the United States is one of the most liberal nations of the world in its immigration policy.

Bald-headed barbers will no longer importune customers to have a tonic or hair restorer in big Chicago shops, the bosses having at last sensed the humor of such a situation. They will hereafter employ only tonsorial artists whose luxuriant hair is a good advertisement for their wares.

Maybe the fellow who took a pot shot at Jack Dempsey had a hunch regarding the kind of a scrap he was about to stage at Miami.

New York plays have had a bad season. Due, perhaps, to the playwrights' inability to invent anything new in the way of profanity.

DEATH OF MARSHAL FOCH

Citizens of all the allied nations will note with sorrow the death of Marshal Ferdinand Foch, while those of former enemy countries must pay to his military mastery a tribute of respect.

Born in 1851, this great French soldier was graduated as an artilleryman and was for several years instructor and later commandant at the College of War, becoming a brigadier-general in 1907.

At the outbreak of the World war he was given command of the Ninth Army and led the French center in the repulse of the Germans in the first battle of the Marne. In March, 1918, he was placed in supreme command of all the allied forces on the western front, and immediately developed a plan of campaign which brought victory on November 11 following.

His name will live in history as the conqueror of the Central Powers and commander of the most formidable military force the world has ever seen.

A FAMOUS BATTLE FLAG

Last week one of the South's most famous battle flags found its final resting place in the Confederate museum in Richmond, to which it was presented by the family of the late Colonel Charles T. Loehr, historian of the First Virginia regiment, to which the flag belonged.

The flag was made by the women of Richmond from strips of silk cut from their dresses, and had its baptism of fire at Bull Run. It led the First Virginia in many battles, and saw its last service on the field at Gettysburg, where the regiment formed a part of Pickett's division in its ill-fated charge, one of the most desperate in military history, whose failure lost the battle and the war.

Of the regiment's plight at the close of the battle Colonel Loehr wrote: "The color guard is dead and the color sergeant has lost his arm; our colonel lies dying on the field, and the regiment lost 120 men out of about 160 who went into that charge."

It is fitting that the famous flag should be added to the other priceless relics in the Confederate museum, which are viewed with reverence by many thousands of visitors from North and South alike.

A MANLESS MAN-O-WAR

Among the amazing developments of the last year or two is that of the radio robot, or mechanical device controlled by radio, which has assumed many forms, from a talking and moving mechanical "man" to a radio-controlled battleship.

So far, the most remarkable production in this line is the radio-controlled equipment installed on the British battleship Centurion, whereby its movements may be governed by transmitters carried by a destroyer two or three miles away. As described by Dr. E. E. Free, this radio control enables the distant destroyer commander to cause these functions to be performed aboard the battleship.

Start and stop the engines, change course, throw up a smoke screen, and even regulate the playing of the ship's phonographic band; all without a single man aboard the Centurion.

Many experiments, more or less successful, have been made in America with radio controlled airplanes, tanks, automobiles and motorcycles, as well as radio directed naval ships during target practice.

It would suit most of us if in the next war it were possible to send out machines alone to do the fighting, while humans remained behind the lines attending to their duties.

TOWN MOURNS DRUNKARD

Strangers seeing flags at half mast and a great funeral procession at New City, N. Y., the other day might have reasonably supposed that a mayor or other dignitary had passed away. But it was only Michael Whalen, the village drunkard, who had died.

Once a prosperous contractor, Whalen's weakness for liquor proved his undoing, and he had spent one-half of his 54 years in jail. Yet, because of his kindness and other likeable qualities, he retained the affection of his fellow-citizens, who raised $1,000 to give him an elaborate funeral.

He was also a hero of a sort, because of his action in saving the jail from destruction by fire a few years ago, and it had long been the custom for county officials to give him an annual Christmas party.

New City sincerely mourns Michael Whalen, not because he was a drunkard, but in spite of it.

Mrs. Lillian Sheasby of Superior, Wis., set a unique record in the reducing line by losing 44 pounds and getting paid for it besides. Declaring that she had fallen off that much on account of worrying over the alienation of her husband's affections by Mrs. Stella Meyers, a jury ordered a verdict in Mrs. Sheasby's favor for $2,500—about $5 a pound.

George Washington of Akron, Ohio, lived up to the traditions of his illustrious namesake when arraigned in police court, saying: "I had a knife; was drunk, and scratched the guy up a little." The judge said: "For being truthful when there is no evidence against you, I'll fine you only $10 and costs.

FIVE-YEAR FARM SURVEY

Two leading engineering groups will shortly begin a five-year study of the entire farm problem, according to a recent announcement, the survey to include farm management, financing, economical production, elimination of waste, the use of power and mechanical equipment, and the betterment of relations between agriculture and commerce and industry.

This survey will be undertaken by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers and the American Engineering Council, of which President Hoover was formerly the head. The methods to be employed will be similar to those of the Hoover committee on waste in industry, which was instrumental in effecting economies extending to many lines of manufacturing.

For several years increasing attention has been given to research and fact-finding as means toward better methods in commerce and industry. While similar work has been done in behalf of agriculture, no such comprehensive study as that now planned has ever been undertaken. The new survey will doubtless be a most important step toward putting agriculture on a more sound and business-like basis.

The new series of Canadian pictorial postage stamps, the last of which went on sale recently, are said to be the finest examples of the engraver's art that have been issued by any country.

Various sections of the Dominion are represented in the larger denominations. The $1 stamp bears a picture of the parliament buildings; the 50-cent shows the famous schooner Bluenose winning the international fishing boat race; the 20-cent portrays the prairie wheat fields; the 12-cent illustrates the Quebec western mountain. The lower denominations bear the King's head.

The exquisite character of the engraving may be judged by the fact that under a microscope the windows of the parliament buildings may be counted, and figures of horses no

COLMA, CALIF.

Colma News Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Mibelli, of San Francisco, moved to Colma during the early part of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis, of Half Moon Bay, were visiting friends in Colma during the latter part of last week.

Pappas Bros. are the proud possessors of a fine new Willys-Knight sedan, purchased last week from the Mission Motor Sales.

The Del Monte Grocery, on Mission street, operated by G. Casentini, changed its name to the Belmont Grocery during the past week.

The next meeting of La Fiesta Club will be held on April 10 at the home of Mrs. Sylvia Fischer, who will be assisted by Miss Roberta Heagney.

A marriage license was issued on last Monday to Fortunato Calegario, of South San Francisco, and Miss Laura Toso, of Colma. Miss Toso is one of the popular daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Pietro Toso, of Hill street.

I wish to thank my many friends in Colma for their loyal support in re-electing me school trustee of the Jefferson district at the election held last Friday.

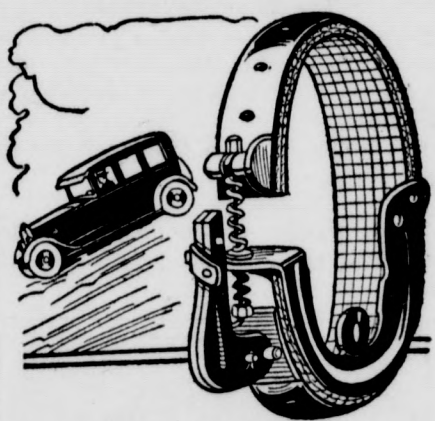

GEORGE R. AUGUSTIEN.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schwartz and son Carl, Jr., and Mrs. Schwartz's mother, Mrs. E. Tiedemann, of Vista Grande avenue, Daly City, were dinner guests on last Saturday at the home of Mrs. Schwartz's sister, Mrs. C. Myser, in San Francisco.

Don't forget the sport dance to be held by members of La Fiesta Club on Saturday evening, April 13, at George Washington Masonic Temple, San Juan and San Jose avenues. A good time is assured all who attend. The best of union music will be furnished for the occasion.

Last Saturday evening a party of young people motored to Miramar, where an Italian dinner was enjoyed at Beach Inn, after which dancing was enjoyed. Those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wall, Misses Marge O'Connor, Audrey Diamond, Roberta Heagney, Tess O'Connor, Messrs. Eling, Wallace Allen and Tom Green.

Fred Bertetta, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Bertetta, who was severely burned about the arms, back and legs, with gasoline, and who has been confined to the hospital for over a week, was able to return to his home for the Easter holidays. It was necessary for Fred to return to the hospital this week, where the doctors are grafting skin from his lower limbs to his right arm, which was burned most severely. The lad's face and hair were also badly burned, but are greatly improved at this time. Young Fred is very popular and active in school and gymnasium work, and has the best wishes of his many friends for a speedy recovery.

Don't forget the whist party to be given on Saturday evening, April 20, by the Colma Girls' Club.

The friends of Mrs. T. Maffi, of Lomita Park, were shocked to learn of her sudden death at her home on last Thursday evening. Mrs. Maffi is the aunt of Mrs. Sylvia Fischer.

The friends of George Krehl tendered him a surprise party on last Saturday evening in the form of a house warming. He was presented with a beautiful chair, a gift from his many friends. About thirty guests were present, who spent a delightful evening dancing and playing games. At midnight a delicious Italian dinner was served.

Miss Anna Kennedy entertained the members of the Girls' Club of Colma and several friends at her home on Mission street last Wednesday evening. After a very pleasant evening, dainty refreshments were served to the following guests: Misses Sybil Ver Linden, Florence Kennedy, Emma Ver Linden, Josephine Kennedy, Alice Thiel, Elsie Wilkie, Bertha Thiel, Fabian Ver Linden, Violet Ver Linden, Mesdames Hahn, J. Kennedy, P. Brown, P. Shinazy, L. Lemon, F. Lambertson and F. Hurst.

Miss Dorothy Dennis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dennis, entertained several of her friends on last Wednesday evening, and to the surprise of her friends little cards announcing her engagement to John Garibaldi were found at each guest's place at the table. The table was prettily decorated in pink crepe paper, with little favors to match. Among the guests were Mesdames Mable Martini, Tillie Peterson, Albina Volkman, Ida Garibaldi, D. Garibaldi, Jack Dennis, Ida Dixon, Rena Maggi, and Misses Mary Damonte and Tuddie Silicani.

SOME ODDS AND ENDS OF THE WEEK'S NEWS

California now stands eleventh in the list of states for voting percentage in national elections. In 1920 this state ranked thirty-second.

Backing the state narcotic division in its battle waged to combat the narcotic evil, Governor C. C. Young has signed a bill which is intended to cut down a large source of income to the peddler in contraband habit-forming drugs. The new law places the known itinerant addict in the class of a vagrant.

Directors of the San Francisco Community Chest report that 124,241 subscribers gave a total of $2,213,393.82 for maintenance of the chest's 107 agencies.

John Napolitano, aged 31, of Oakland, has confessed in Martinez that he attempted to extort $500 from A. Martigneno, a Contra Costa county rancher.

Eighty-two candidates, including three women, were admitted to the practice of law last Tuesday in ceremonies before the State Supreme Court in San Francisco.

Industrial accidents in California took the toll of 3,107 deaths and 5,418 during the last four and a half years in permanent injuries, Will J. French, director of the state department of industrial relations, has reported to Governor C. C. Young.

Miss Maxine Dunlap, former Oakland stenographer, holds the honor of being the first woman air student of Mills field to be awarded a private airplane pilot's license.

Judge A. F. St. Sure, last Monday at San Francisco, admitted 248 aliens to citizenship. They represented 28 nations. Of this number 56 were subjects of Great Britain, 43 of Italy, 34 Russians, 29 Germans, 9 subjects of Greece and 9 Danes.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed a frame building in the National Soldiers' Home at Sattelle, 200 veterans being endangered, but all fleeing to safety.

Speeding and attempting to pass another automobile without sounding his horn were responsible for the death of Clyde Nance, pitcher for the San Francisco Mission baseball club, killed near Merced last Sunday afternoon, county authorities declared.

The Jones law recently passed by Congress does not automatically amend the Wright act, state prohibition law, according to an opinion rendered by Attorney General U. S. Webb. To regard the stringent "five and ten" penalties of the new law as part and parcel of the state enforcement statute, says the attorney, would be unconstitutional.

San Francisco's city jails now have the largest number of prisoners in history, according to the sheriff, who announces that there is a total of 790 inmates in the three jails.

San Francisco finished ninth of all the cities in the United States in 1928 in national fire prevention contests, according to word from the United States Chamber of Commerce at Washington.

Eighteen girls and one boy went into Superior Court in Los Angeles last Tuesday to have their movie contracts approved, as required by law, because they are under 21 years of age.

California will enjoy its "Days of '49" celebration June 27 to July 4 next year, and the fiesta will make the streets of Sacramento resound. This is the decision reached by the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce, following a hearing on pleas of the Sacramento Valley Secretaries' Association that the date be changed to later in the season.

FIREMEN PREPARING FOR THIRD ANNUAL PICNIC

Attractive placards are being distributed by the committee in charge of the third annual picnic to be given by the members of the Colma Volunteer Fire Department on Sunday, April 21. These placards contain advertisements of business men and well wishers of the volunteer firemen, who are expecting an immense crowd at Lovchen Garden on Sunday, April 21.

S. A. Landini, G. W. Wright and E. Graziani, members of the committee, announce that this year's picnic will undoubtedly eclipse all former outings in point of attendance and attractions offered for the entertainment of all who attend this annual celebration of the families and friends of the Colma volunteer firemen.

You will miss the most interesting event of the season if you are not at Lovchen Garden on April 21.

THE HOUSE OF COLOR

THE BROADCAST JAMBOREE WILL BE A GALA EVENT

Next Saturday night is to be a gala evening for the members of the Young Ladies' and Young Men's Institute.

On that evening at the Hotel Whitcomb roof garden, the first week end post Lenten dance of the season is to be held, the sponsors being the Alberian branch of the Y. L. I. and Pioneer Council of the Y. M. I. The "Broadcast Jamboree" is the title of this much-heralded social event.

Extensive arrangements have been made for this affair, and a record attendance is assured. Besides representative delegations from all local auxiliaries of the two grand Institutes, the guests are to include many affiliated with the Knights of Columbus, Daughters of America, El Camino

Club and other organizations, as well as many students from the various colleges, universities and high schools about the bay region. Among the features to be presented is the musical program as arranged by Pete Butti, a well known member of the Y. M. I. Miss Madeleine Cotter and Harry Hunt, the former representing the Alberians, and the latter the Pioneers, are at the head of the committee in charge of arrangements.

Add to the list of champions of this and that "Red" Jackson, airplane pilot of St. Louis, who did 417 barrel rolls in succession. The previous record for this particular stunt was 283.

Famous last words: "My wife never comes into my private office without knocking."

11:45. Small raps on the table, and one strong one, like the blow of a doubled fist.

11:47. The table is moving, twisting about. It ceases and the knocks come again.

11:50. The curtain of the cabinet seems to be moving. No one else has apparently noticed it. I have stopped the phonograph.

11:55. The curtain has blown out as far as Mrs. Livingstone's shoulder. All see it. Edith says something has touched her on the right arm. To my inquiry if anyone has relaxed his grasp of the handle she is holding, no one has done so.

12:00. The bell inside the cabinet has been knocked from the table, with such violence that it rolls out into the room.

12:10. Nothing since the bell fell. Livingstone has asked if less light is required, and by knocks the reply is "Yes." I have put out the lamp.

(The following notes were made in the dark and are not very distinct. I have supplemented them from memory.)

All quiet since the last entry. There is a mouse apparently playing about in the library. Edith says that Jane seems to be in a sort of trance. She is breathing heavily. More raps, apparently on the door frame into library. I am cold, but probably nerves.

There is a sense of soft movement in the library; the covers are rustling; the prisms of the chandelier can be heard.

Edith says her chair is being slowly lifted. It has crashed to the floor. A hand has apparently run over the guitar strings. All complain of cold. I am alarmed about Jane.

I noticed the herbal odor again; no one else has, apparently.

(Note: At this point, Jane's breathing continued labored, and my apprehension growing, I insisted on terminating the seance.)

September 2.

Jane shows no ill effect from last night, and indeed appears to have no knowledge of the later phenomena.

"I think I must have fallen asleep," she said this morning. "How silly of me!"

She has no idea of her entranced condition and I have not told her.

She accepts the idea of a second sitting tonight, without enthusiasm, but apparently with the fatalistic idea that what must be, must be.

As to what Halliday had hoped to discover, I am as completely in the dark as ever. On my decision to end the seance, and on turning on the lights as I did without warning, the group was seen to be as it had been at the beginning, except that Mrs. Livingstone's chair appeared to have been pushed back, and was somewhat nearer the cabinet than before.

Hayward, so far as I can tell, had not changed his position. His attitude throughout seemed to me to be one of polite but rather uneasy skepticism. Livingstone, on the other hand, showed strong nervous excitement from first to last, but certainly never left the table.

He is ill today, which is not surprising, but I understand the intention is to carry on the experiment without him tonight.

Regarding the phenomena themselves, what can I do but accept them? Certainly they showed no connection with what Mrs. Livingstone likes to call the spirit world; on the other hand, either they were genuine, or they showed an experience in trickery utterly beyond any member of our small group.

An who would trick us? And why?

Livingstone was right, however, as to the psychological effect of the preliminaries: in spite of myself they influenced me. The music, the low light followed by darkness, the strange and fearful expectancy of something beyond our ken, all added to the history of the house itself and its recent tragedy, had prepared us for anything.

The billowing of the cabinet curtain was particularly terrible. Skeptic as I am, I had the feeling of some dreadful thing behind it; something one should not see, and yet somehow might see.

Both Crawford and Cameron believe that certain individuals have the ability to project from their bodies rod-like structures of energy, invisible to the naked eye but capable of producing levitations, raps and other phenomena. They believe that these structures are utilized by outside spirits, or "controls." My own conviction is that if such powers exist, they are not directed from outside, but by the medium's subconscious mind. In that case, of course, it is possible that Jane was the innocent author of last night's entertainment.

Mrs. Livingstone suggests that if we secure anything of interest tonight,

I consult Cameron with a view to his joining us later on.

Notes of Second Seance.

Sept. 2; 1 a. m. Largely from memory, since all the later part was held without light, but made immediately following seance. Present: Jane, Edith, Hayward, Halliday, Mrs. Livingstone and myself. Livingstone absent.

I have moved lamp out from corner, and am now near door into hall.

Doors from den and library into hall closed. Door into library open.

11:10. Table moves almost immediately. Edith says it is rising from floor. It has risen, but one leg remains on floor.

11:15. All remove hands, and table settles down.

11:20. Loud raps on table. Constructed as demand for less light. Handkerchief thrown over lamp. Curtain of cabinet billows into room. Guitar overturned inside cabinet. All quiet now.

No phenomena whatever for about ten minutes. Jane very quiet. Hayward feels her pulse; is fast but strong. Mrs. Livingstone asks if too much light, and rap replies "yes." I have put out the lamp.

(Note: From here on I was able only to jot down a word or two in long hand, the previous night's experiment of making stenographic notes in darkness having shown its practical impossibility. The following record I have since elaborated from memory.)

The bell in cabinet rings violently and is flung across room, striking door into hall.

A small light, bluish-white, about a foot above Jane's head. It shines for a moment and then disappears.

It has flashed again, near the fireplace.

A fine but steady tattoo is being beaten, apparently, outside of the door to hall. A tap or two on metal, possibly the fender. Silence.

Jane apparently in trance.

The sounds extend into the library, and there is movement there. The covers seem to be in motion as before. The prisms of chandelier tinkle like small bells. From where I sit I can see a small light over bookcase in library. It is gone.

The herbal odor again.

Jane is groaning and moving in her chair. Mrs. Livingstone and Hayward having trouble holding her hands. She calls: "Here! Here!" sharply.

Hayward says something has touched him on the shoulder. "Something floated by me just now," he says, "on the left. It touched my shoulder."

A crash on the table. I notice the herbal odor once more. Silence again.

Something is in the hall. It is groping its way along. It is at the door beside me.

My notes end here. I had reached the limit of my endurance and, as the switch was beside me, I turned on the lights. As before, Mrs. Livingstone's chair seemed somewhat nearer the cabinet; no other changes in position, except that Halliday had gone out to search hall and lower floor. The bell was on the floor near door into hall, and lying on table, "Smyth's Everyday Essays."

To the best of my knowledge this book was in the library at the beginning of the seance.

No signs of disturbance in library or hall, to account for sounds I heard. But an unfortunate situation has arisen, owing to Mrs. Livingstone's failure to lock door from hall to drive. She had pushed the bolt, but as the door was not entirely closed, it had not engaged. We found this door standing open.

This, however, although Hayward seems uneasy, hardly invalidates the extraordinary phenomena secured tonight.

Jane exhausted, and Edith with her.

September 3.

I have seen Cameron, and he will come out. He has evidently been seriously ill, but it shows the dominance of the mental over the physical that he brushed aside my apologies and went directly to the matter in hand.

But it is a curious thing to reflect that, a short time ago, it would have been I who was the skeptic and Cameron who would have been ranged on the other side. Today it was I who was excited. And Cameron who was to be convinced!

"This Edith, of whom you speak," he said, "how old is she?"

"Twenty."

"A nervous type?"

"Yes, and no. Not hysterical, if that's what you mean."

Certain of the phenomena, too, seem to puzzle him. The table levitation, the lights and other manifestations were not unusual, he said, with a strong physical medium present, and this he imagined Jane to be. The book, however, particularly attracted his interest. Over my notes on that he sat thinking for some time.

"You say it crashed onto the table?" "At the last, yes. But Doctor Hayward, who was nearest the library door, says that after my wife called, 'Here!' he felt something pass his shoulder. Float past, is the way he puts it. He thinks it was the book, and that it dropped onto the table after that."

"About what you heard in the hall; was this hall dark?"

"Yes. There were no lights anywhere in the house."

"You heard footsteps?"

"No. It was like something feeling its way along. You know what I mean."

Toward the end of the conference he leaned back and studied me through his glasses.

"What started you on this, Porter?" he said.

He did not remind me, although he might well have done so, that my previous attitude, to him and his kind, had been one of a sort of indifferent contempt; that, during his entire time at the university, I had never so much as set foot in his rooms, nor asked him into my house; that on the two or three times only when we had met I had taken no pains to hide my rejection of him and all that he stood for. But it was implied in his question, and I dare say I colored. I told him, however, as best I could, and he smiled.

"I rather imagine," he said, "that when we pass over, our interest in this plane of existence is impersonal, we may hope to educate it as to what is beyond. But we hardly carry our desires for revenge with us."

Of all that I had told him, however, the Evanston matter interested him most. Over the letter he sat for a long time, his heavy, almost hairless head sunk forward as he read and reread it.

"Curious," he said. "What do you make out of it?"

"A great deal," I told him, and detailed my discovery of the letter behind the drawer of the desk, and my theory as to old Horace Porter's death. I had brought that letter also, and he studied it as carefully as he had the other.

"The enormity of the idea," he repeated. "That's a strong phrase. And he threatens to call in the police! Have you any notion as to what this idea may have been?"

"Not the slightest," I said frankly.

"I would like to keep this for a while, if you don't mind," he said at last. "I have a medium here in town—but I forget. You don't believe in such things?"

"I don't know what I believe. But you are welcome to it, of course."

It was only after this matter of the letter that he finally agreed to come out the day after tomorrow.

September 4.

The words "making trouble," lightly underscored on page 24 of "Smyth's Everyday Essays," are the key to Gordon's cipher. The entire sentence is: "It is often the ingenious rather than the malicious who go about the world making trouble."

In a few hours, then, we shall have solved our mystery, or at least such portion of it as is locked in the diary. Read with this key we have already translated the sentence I recorded here on the twenty-second of August. Although we cannot interpret it without the context, it becomes:

"The G. P. stuff went big last night."

In the same way the scrap of paper found in my garage is now discovered to read: "Smyth, P. 24." Edith's single error lying in the number, which she had remembered as 28.

Halliday suggests that the G. P. above may refer to George Pierce, but makes no attempt to explain the reference.

Halliday's story of his discovery is interesting; certain portions of the two seances he apparently accepts without comment save: "It was the usual stuff," and lets it go at that. Although "usual" is hardly the word I should myself use in that connection. But the book was, as I gather it, not the usual stuff.

"There was something about the way it came that night of the seance," he says, and makes a gesture. "Mrs. Porter called it, and it came. Like a dog," he says, and watches me to be sure I am not laughing at him. However that may be, the book and the strange manner of its arrival in our midst had interested him, and he had spent some time over it. Thus, he found where it belonged in the library, and tried to discover some significance in that. But there was none.

"I drew a blank there," he says. "I examined the wall behind, but there was nothing. You see, it couldn't have been thrown in; it wasn't possible. And when Hayward said it touched him, both his hands were being held. In other words, he didn't put it there."

All the time, I gather, he was feeling extremely foolish. He would pause now and then, in order to assure me that he felt "a bit silly." He didn't believe in such things; when there was a natural phenomenon there was a natural law to account for it. Maybe telekinesis, or whatever they called it.

"But there had to be some reason for that book," he says. "I just sat down and went through it."

He has taken the key words to the city, and has just telephoned (2 p. m.) that the detective bureau has put a staff to work on it.

"It will be several hours," he said. "It's slow work. But I'll be out with the sheets as soon as they've finished."

September 5.

Too much exhausted today to make any coherent record. The four hours last night in the district attorney's office have worn me out. I have called off Cameron tonight, for the same reason.

The mystery seems to be increased, rather than solved, by the diary. By such portions, at least, as were read to me. And I do not understand the conditions under which I was questioned, nor the questions themselves. Good G—d, are they suspecting me again? Halliday is still in town.

Later: Edith has removed my anxiety as to Halliday's return. He has telephoned, and she has just brought me the message.

"He says you are not to worry," she reports. "He is working on the case. And you will not be disturbed again."

She looks pale, does Edith, and Jane is not much better. I have told Jane the whole matter; my absence last night had possibly prepared her, but the very confession that I had been subjected to what amounted to the third degree has roused her to a fury of indignation.

"How can they dare such a thing!" she said. "How can they even think it?"

"It's their business to believe a man guilty until he proves his innocence," I reminded her. "And Gordon thought it; you must remember that."

For nothing is more clear to me to-day than that this diary of Gordon's which Halliday himself carried to the police, has somehow incriminated me.

September 6.

Halliday is still in town. I can do nothing but wait here, eating my heart out with anxiety, and allowing my imagination to run away with me in a thousand ways.

My women-folk support me according to their kind. Jane serves me sweetbreads for luncheon, and Edith sits by, giving me an occasional almost furtive caress as an evidence of her faith in me.

But Edith is curiously lifeless; that small but burning flame in her which we call optimism, for want of a better word, seems definitely quenched. She is silent and apathetic, and has been so since yesterday.

She seems to resent our having sent in the key to the diary.

"If you only hadn't done that," she said today.

"What else could we do? We have to get at the bottom of this thing."

"I don't see that it has got you anywhere. It has only muddled things up."

What she has in her mind I do not know, unless, poor child, she has been building a future on Halliday's solving the crime, and that now that prospect is gone. She tells me that Starr has been on guard at the main house, quietly, for the two nights Halliday has been in town. But if she knows any explanation of his presence she does not give it.

"He's afraid to go inside," she said, scornfully. "He just sits out on the terrace and smokes. If anybody said boo behind him he'd jump into the bay and drown himself."

She has apparently implicit faith in Halliday's ability to keep me from further indignity. But I am not so certain. The sound of a car on the highway sets my pulse to beating like a riveting machine; at the arrival of the Morrison truck a few minutes ago with some belated buttermilk I got up and buttoned my coat.

My place in my little world is neither large nor important, but it is difficult for me to imagine it without me.

"Suppose the worst to happen," said Matthew Arnold to the portly jeweler from Cheapside; "suppose even yourself to be the victim; if n'y a pas d'homme necessaire. . . . The great mundane movement would still go on, the gravel walks of your villa would still be rolled, dividends would still be paid at the bank, omnibuses would still run, there would be the same old crush at the corner of Fenchurch street."

This is the sixth. It was on the fourth, then, a few hours after Halliday had gone to the city, that a taxi stopped here, and Greenough got out. There seemed to me to be a trifle more than his usual ponderousness in his manner, and a distinct concentration in the way he looked at me as I came down the staircase. At the same time, he was civilly itself, and he stated his errand matter-of-factly. They had a staff working on the diary, and he knew I would like to be present when it was finished.

"It's a long job," he said. "But we've split it into a half dozen parts, and it ought to be ready by eight, or half past."

It was six then, and as our early dinner was almost ready, I asked him to stay. We ate cheerfully enough, took the seven-fifteen express from Oakville, and were in town and at the County building at something before ten. I was surprised but not startled to find Benchley, the sheriff, there, and three or four other men, including Hemingway, the district attorney. Hemingway held some typed sheets in his hand when we entered, and was reading them carefully. Halliday was standing by a window staring out into the square, and the first indication I had that anything was wrong was the expression on his face as he turned and saw me.

The second was a polite invitation to Halliday to leave the room, and his manner of receiving it.

"I'm staying," he said flatly. "If there's any objection to that, I shall advise Mr. Porter to make no statement and to answer no questions, until he can be properly protected."

"Protected?" I asked. "Protected from what?"

"From this strong-arm outfit," said Halliday, and surveyed the room with his jaw thrust forward.

"I am under arrest?"

Hemingway put down the papers and took off his glasses.

"Certainly not," he said. "Your young friend is being slightly dramatic. I know that you want this mystery solved as much as we do; more, since it directly concerns you. This is not a trap, Mr. Porter; we shall ask you some questions, and I hope you will answer them. That is all."

"I reserve the right to interfere in case of any trick," Halliday put in. "We have framed no trick questions," Hemingway said quietly. "We want the facts, that's all."

He rang a bell, and a secretary came in. My mouth was dry and some one placed a glass of water before me. From that on, for four hours, I answered questions; at the end of that time I walked out, still free although slightly dizzy. . . .

(Note: Halliday has recently secured a copy of the stenographic notes of that night. As they would make a small volume in themselves, I give here only such portions as seem to forward the narrative.)

Cheerful and Sturdy Room for Small Boy

A small boy's room should be above all things cheery, sturdy—yes, but homelike and inviting. He does not appreciate all the dainty fripperies dear to his sister's heart. The wise mother plans his room so it is a pleasant place for him to store his treasures and entertain his friends without damage to fragile material and delicate colors.

As a beginning, if you are planning to refurbish your small son's room, select a warm two-tone tan-stripe paper, dark enough so dirt will not show, but light enough to give a cheerful light to the room. For decoration put one of the many bright-colored wall paper friezes at the top—about eighteen inches deep—showing in its spreading scenic design, vermillion and orange, blue and green on a cream or tan ground.

A Sun Secret

A rather dull student found it impossible to believe that the earth is round, in spite of the arguments of an eminent astronomer.

"But look here, Johnson," said the astronomer, "you must see that the earth cannot be anything else but round. Now, tell me, where does the sun rise?"

"In the east, of course!"

"And where does it set?"

"In the west."

"Well, then, how does it manage to get back in the east again by the morning?"

Johnson thought hard for a minute. Then an intelligent look dawned in his eye.

"Why, of course," he said at last, "it just slips back in the night!"

SAVE THE BEACHES FOR ALL THE PEOPLE

"The fight which progressive citizens of California are making for the public ownership and development of their beaches deserves national attention because the same thing must be repeated on almost every important shore in America if growing cities are to be protected against private greed. Sea shores ought to be places of public play in scenes of natural beauty: they have become in a large part of the country dismal slums of trade characterized by rows of hideous 'hot-dog' stands. When they are not thus captured by peddlers they are happy hunting grounds of the real-estate speculator. Los Angeles is a case in point. Because the city's pioneers were careless about the future of neighboring beaches the citizens of Los Angeles must go to other cities for their best recreation, while private owners and exclusive beach clubs monopolize the choicest beaches near the city. The Community Service of San Diego under the vigorous leadership of Tam Deering has worked out a program which every community must copy. Let a road be mapped out along every newly developed shore paralleling the ordinary high-tide line; then dedicate all the land between this road and the high-tide land as a public park. Wherever beaches have been partially purchased by private owners the community should capture for park purposes all that is left, and pass restrictive legislation permitting the zoning of regions near the waterfront. If Californians have risen supreme over the 'realtor' and his subdivisions, who shall say that a single waterfront in America is irredeemable."

HALF BILLION DOLLAR BANKING ORGANIZATION

A move that is destined to greatly strengthen both the domestic and the international position of Trans-America Corporation has been effected in the city of New York with the merger of The Bank of America and the international banking and investment house of Blair and Company, to form a new half billion dollar international banking organization. Trans-America Corporation will have a close interest in the new enterprise, as the corporation and its subsidiary, the Bank of America, own more than 650,000 shares of Bank of America. Through the addition of the element represented by Blair and Company, more than 300,000 shares will be added to these holdings. The new organization will operate under the name of The Bank of America and its business will be conducted in the headquarters occupied by that bank at 44 Wall Street.

The consolidation with Blair and Company adds tremendous scope to the historic interests and operations of The Bank of America developed through more than a century of growth. Blair and Company is also an organization of seasoned antecedents and mounting prestige, as its operations are generations old. It is noted that this organization has acted as fiscal agent and depository for governments and municipalities, as well as numerous corporations. It is the dominating factor in the Petroleum Company of America, $100,000,000 investment trust organized earlier in the year, chiefly for investment in the oil industry. The consolidation of the two institutions therefore brings substantial advantages to The Bank of America in its depository and trust departments, in addition to all of the more general advantages noted.

EDISON ON POLITICS

In a recent interview Thomas A. Edison discussed government, politics and business in characteristically direct fashion, and referred pointedly to the wastefulness of government bureaucracy. Speaking of the government's ventures into the business field he declared that the government never really goes into business, for it never makes ends meet, adding that it just mixes a little business with a lot of politics and no one ever gets a chance to find out what is actually going on. Mr. Edison is not pessimistic, however, but expresses his belief that continued progress and prosperity lie ahead of us. He referred to what may be expected during the Hoover administration as follows: "One of the highest duties of the president is to keep the government out of business. He would perform a great public service if he did nothing else. That is one of the many things that we can trust Hoover to do. That is his biggest job, and I should include in that job the clearing out of the bureaucracies which are growing up in Washington and becoming a wasteful nuisance." President Hoover may, indeed, keep the government out of further disastrous excursions into the field of business but he will find it very difficult to get rid of the army of bureaucrats who harass the people while feeding at the public crib. They appear to be too strongly entrenched ever to be dislodged.

Like many another preacher, the Rev. Chtster Apy, of the Church of the Second Advent in Brooklyn, devotes a part of his time to business pursuits. Six days a week he trades on the New York Stock Exchange, where he has a seat which cost $560,000, and on the seventh day he preaches. He began as a messenger boy in Wall Street eight years ago, studying theology in the meantime.

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF DALY CITY AMENDING THE PROVISIONS OF ORDINANCE NO. 144, ENTITLED "ORDINANCE DIVIDING THE CITY OF DALY CITY INTO RESIDENCE, INDUSTRIAL AND COMMERCIAL DISTRICTS, AND GOVERNING THE LOCATION OF CERTAIN INDUSTRIES THEREIN, AND PROHIBITING THE ESTABLISHMENT OR MAINTENANCE OF CERTAIN BUSINESS OR INDUSTRIES IN SAID DISTRICT" BY EXCLUDING THEREFROM CERTAIN TERRITORY.

The Board of Trustees of the City of Daly City do ordain as follows:

Section 1. An Ordinance of the said City of Daly City, No. 144, entitled "Ordinance Dividing the City of Daly City into Residence, Commercial and Industrial Districts, and governing the Location of Certain Industries Therein and Prohibiting the Establishment or Maintenance of Certain Business or Industries in said District," passed and adopted as an Ordinance of said City on the 10th day of August, 1925, is hereby amended as follows:

Section II of the Ordinance mentioned in the preceding paragraph is hereby amended by adding to the district therein described all those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the City of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California, described as follows:

Lot numbered Eight (8) in Block numbered One (1), which is shown on that certain map entitled "Map of Crocker Estate Tract Subdivision No. 1," filed in the office of the County Recorder of the County of San Mateo, June 1, 1908, in Book 6 of Maps at Page 15.

Section 2. The City Clerk is hereby ordered to have this Ordinance published once in the Daly City Record, a weekly newspaper of general circulation in the City of Daly City, and hereby designated for that purpose. This Ordinance shall be in effect from and after its passage.

Introduced March 11, 1929.

Passed and adopted as an Ordinance of the City of Daly City by the Board of Trustees of said City, at a regular meeting of said Board held March 25, 1929, by the following vote, viz:

AYES, and in favor of the passage of said Ordinance: Trustees: Edden, Daiton, Moran, Sunderman, Smith.

NOES: Trustees: None.

ABSENT: Trustees: None.

H. H. SMITH,

Mayor of the City of Daly City.

ATTEST: B. C. ROSS,

City Clerk of the City of Daly City.

NOTICE OF SHERIFF'S SALE

Number 15129.

In the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of San Mateo.

Louis Nava, Plaintiff, vs. C. B. Rich and Hertha M. Rich, his wife, Defendants.

Under and by virtue of an execution issued out of the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of San Mateo, on the 6th day of March, A. D. 1928, in Case No. 15129, wherein Louis Nava, the above named plaintiff, on the 6th day of March, A. D. 1929, recovered a judgment against C. B. Rich and Hertha M. Rich, his wife, the above named defendants, for the sum of Five Hundred Ninety-seven and 66-100 ($597.66) Dollars, and interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent per annum till paid, from the date of said judgment, and One Hundred and 00-100 Dollars for attorney's fees, together with Twenty-one and 50-100 Dollars costs and disbursements at the date of such judgment and accruing costs $1.00 as appears to us of record.

AND WHEREAS, the Judgment Roll in the action in which said judgment was entered is on file in the office of the said Court, and the said judgment was docketed in said Clerk's office on the 6th day of March, A. D. 1929.

And the sum of $720.16 with interest is now (at the date of this writ) actually due on said judgment.

I am commanded to sell all those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land situate in the City of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California, and more particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Lot 21 in Block 2 as designated on the map entitled "Map No. 1 Vista Grande, San Mateo County, Calif." which map was filed in the office of the County Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, on November 5, 1906, in Liber "C" of Maps at page 35, and a copy entered in Liber 4 of Maps, at page 41.

Public notice is hereby given that on Tuesday, the 23rd day of April, 1929, at the hour of eleven (11:00) o'clock A. M. of that day, at the front door of the County Court House in the City of Redwood City, County of San Mateo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title, and interest of C. B. Rich and Hertha M. Rich, his wife, the above named defendants, in and to the above described property, at public auction, for cash in lawful money of the United States of America, to the highest and best bidder, to satisfy said judgment and all costs.

Dated at Redwood City, California, March 27th, 1929.

JAMES J. McGRATH, Sheriff.

By C. A. ALLAN,

Deputy Sheriff.

J. E. McCurdy, Attorney for Plaintiff, Wisnom Building, San Mateo, California.

The colored minister was describing the "bad place" to a congregation of awed listeners.

"Friends," he said, "You've seen molten iron running out of a furnace, haven't you? It is white hot, sizzling and hissing. Well—"

The minister pointed a long, lean finger at the frightened crowd.
"Well," he declared, "they use that stuff for ice cream in the place I am talking about."
